

Global civics for the Arab scientists students: The Process

A group of scientists from around the Arab world met for three days in a workshop and discussed and brainstormed how to adapt Global civics to the Arab scientists students. Modules to be taught were chosen and distributed among the scientists to prepare. After each scientist submitted their module. Each module was sent to an expert in the field to review and finalize. Later each module was sent to a language editor. The whole course is in English and in Arabic. The course includes description of course, modules and instructor guidelines and forms.
